Mr. Charles Dudley Warner has been reading an interesting paper on "Modern Fiction" before a literary club at Hartford.

Charles Scribner's Sons have republished in a scholarly, neat and handsome shape some American translations of the Apology, Crito, and parts of the Phædo. The collection offers those portions of Plato most essential to an understanding of the personal character and moral position of Socrates, and is prefaced by a sketch of the sage. Professor W. W. Good win has furnished an attractive introduc-

Mr. Robert Buchanan in a preface to "Harriet Jay's" novel of "My Connaught Cousins," just published by the Harpers, says that in these days of haste and felly anything really original in literature is certain to be misunderstood.

Mr. William Sharpe's volume on Rossetti, just published by Macmillan, contains an engraving of one of the painter-poet's latest drawings, a "Design for the Sonnet." It is a graceful female figure surrounded by divers poetic symbols.

"Mr. Isaacs" is just now the book most talked about, and its author, Mr. Crawford, the son of the late sculptor, is said to be the hero of the hour in Boston. The entire American edition of the novel

Mr. Gladstone's three favorite authors appear to be Dante, Homer and Virgil. Lord Beaconsfield's tastes were alliterative-he particularly liked Byron. Bolingbroke and Burke. He used, however, to declare himself sick of the very name of Junius. The late Lord Derby loved Homer and devoured French novels, while Palmerston's favorite cure for low spirits was a novel, only he preferred those of the English school. Lord Melbourne cared little for books: but one of his preferences came out in an amusing way at a dinner-party to which he and young Disracli had been invited. The latter was fresh from his Eastera travels, and Lord Melbourne good-naturedly turned the conversation toward Oriental topics. Presently Disraeli, with amazing judeness, said: "Your Lordship seems to have drawn your notions of the East from the 'Arabian Nights.'" "And a devilish good source, too," was the laughing reply.

A society for the study of the works of Ruskin has just been formed at Liverpool.

Mrs. Oliphant has joined the ranks of protestants against Bishop Wilberforce's indiscreet reminiscences. She has no faith in his "conversation with Mrs. Carlyle on the subject of my 'Life of Irving,' to the effect that I 'did not understand him at all,' with further remarks on the lovableness of his character (as if I had misrepresented that), and the conclusion that I was 'narrow and jealous, and greatly the cause of submitting him (Irving) to his foes." Mrs. Oliphant declares that she does not believe that Mrs. Carlyle ever said anything of the kind. "The Carlyles," she adds, " are at present, I think most unjustly, the sport of every scribbler, and any kind of mud will stick that is thrown at their desecrated house. But I, for one, believe in what I know of my honored friends, rather than in what an analyzing biographer may deduce, or an irresponsible diarist jot down through the fumes of careless talk. My conception of Irving's character was drawn in some respects from the inspiration of Mrs. Cariyle herself, so much so as to offend and annoy friends on the other side; and I kept back the letter she wrote to me on the publication of the book from the number of her letters which I sent to Mr. Froude, on account of the too exuberant praise and report of her husband's approbation which was conveyed in it. The cynical reader will say, perhaps, that this is no reason why Bishop Wilberforce's report should not be true. I atterly decline, however, to receive it, were it vouched for by a dozen Wilberforces." The promised volume of Mrs. Carlyle's letters is to be brought out shortly by Mr. Fronde's publishers here and in England.

The Tribune says of it : The Tribune says of it:

"Americans have needed this volume. . . . It is not a volume to excite controversy, but it will enlighten the public in reference to economic questions that are invariably discussed with narrowness and intolerance. . . . May be heartily recommended to all readers and students who aim to instruct themselves in the fundamental principles of this greatest of modern sciences. It is a thoroughly useful work, which ought naturally to raise economic discussion in the United States to a higher level of intelligence."

FRIDAY, Jan. 26-P. M. The business in mining stocks again is so small and so featureless that there is little to say of it, beyond what the figures in the subjoined table tell. Even Sierra Grande to-day was dull at 2.80@2.75. Some business was done in Robinson at 1.30@1.25 and at as low as 1.10 on seller's option of 60 days. Hali-Anderson was more than usually active at 1.75 @1.50@1.55, and Horn Silver rose to 73s. The Comstocks were weak and the low-price shares were quiet within fluctuations of 1 cent.

THE PETROLEUM MARKET. NEW-YORK, Jan. 26.

There was a heavy diminution to-day in the dealings in pipe-line certificates at the Petroleum Exdealings in pipe-line certificates at the Petroleum Fr.
changes. Yet the smaller record represented an active market. The "bull" speculation met a check, and in, dications are not wanting that the extreme enthusiasam of the recent "boom" has been spent, at least for the moment. Within a few minutes after the opening the price of crude oil advanced, with every appearance of excitement, to 106. against 104 last night. Almost immediately, however, the market sagged off, and after frequent fluctuations the price feil to 102. In the final dealings there was a rally to 1034@103, but the tone at the end was weak.

There was no dearth of rumors regarding the situation at the oil fields, but most of them were evidently manufactured to explain the day's decline or to influence room traders. The best advices from the Cooper tract confirmed asterday's reportathat the Patterson well is dry. The guards at the well are said to have been removed and access to the property is allowed to the scouts. But, as said yesterday in this column, the supporters of higher prices are now arguing column, the supporters of higher prices are now arguing in favor of their position from the general condition of the supply and the demand. The "runs" of the pipe lines for Tuesday are reported at 43,943 barrels, against 59,940 barrels on the day previous. The deliveries, however, are recorded at 31,731 barrels for Wednesday, against 40,632 barrels not the day before. The week's advance has been too rapid to forbid the idea of a reaction, and the market has become heavy from the closing out of "shorts" and the liberal purchases of the general traders, who are now loaded up.

The total sales at the three Exchanges were 874 barrels, or leas than those of yesterday, being divided as follows:

New York Petroleum Exchange...... National Petroleum Exchange New York Mining Stock Exchange....

2,580,000 The range of prices was: N. Y. Pet. Nat. Pet.

The market, however, closed weak at the There were no dealings in Government bonds at he boards, except in the 4 per cents. A noticeable feature in the market is a weakness for the classes which are offered by sale, while the cliqued issues are quoted as strong. Bids for the 3s are advanced s and for the 312s 4 per cent without transactions, while the bids for 4s are 3s lower and for the 11gs are 14 lower. Annexed are the closing quota-and the internal revenue receipts $333,926.

The foreign exchanges are quiet, but they are very strong. The Custom House returns of the imports of dry goods for the week show a large and unexpected increase on the imports for the week of the proceeding two years; the figures are given below. For actual business we quote rates for exchange as follows, but a symptom of the demand which is delayed but which is inevitable would advance these rates sharply: Bankers' bills, $4 82½ and $4 86 for long and short sterling respectively; 5.21% and 5.18¼ for francs; 94% and 95½ for reichmarks; 39% and 40% for guilders.

5.18½ for francs; 94¾ and 95½ for reichmarks; 39½ and 40½ for guilders.

In London British coasols, after opening unchanged at 102 3-16 for money and 102 5-16 for account, closed at 102 3-16 for both. United States bonis were of ½ at 106 for 3½s and unchanged at 12½½ for 4s and at 116⅓ for the 4½s. American uniways are reported as extremely duil, and the duotations were irregular—generally a shadelnigher than they were yestorday. The Bank of England gained £7,000 bathon on balance. At Paris French 3 per cents rose from 77.35 to 77.67½.

The Broadway Insurance Campany has declared a semi-annual dividend of 7 per cent on its stock, and has a surplus remaining of $331,600.
